Terrence's Biography

Terrence Manning, owner of T's Chair, has been a hairstylist for over 20 years. He was also a National Educator for Pravana Naturceuticals out of Bell Canyon, California. During his 20-plus years as a stylist, Terrence has become a stylist to numerous celebrities across the country, styling the hair of many professional athletes and actors. Terrence has also taught cutting classes at various cosmetology schools throughout New England; his talent does not go unnoticed, and he is recognized as a well-known educator nationwide.

In May of 2008, one of his biggest dreams came true. He opened a salon showcasing his love for style and New York. Terrence opened SoHo, named after one of his favorite sections of New York because it added the flair and style he wanted his clients and future clients to experience.

Terrence has appeared in various media outlets thanks to his hard work and celebrity clientele. He has been featured in newspapers such as The Providence Journal, The Boston Herald, The Valley Breeze, The Free Press, Your Beauty Industry Magazine, Barber Evo, Associated Press, and Modern Salon Magazine.

He has also been a guest on radio shows, including 100.7 WZLX's "Karlson and McKenzie Show," Kiss 108's "Mattie in The Morning," National Public Radio, Cape Cod Radio, and local television news shows. Recently, he served as the Host of "Fade Routes" on Comcast SportsNet, "Sports Xtra with Larry Ridley" on Channel 7 during the Patriots' playoff run into the off-season, "Rhode Bytes," NECN, "Patriots Today," and Channel 10 Providence's "T's Chair."

Terrence has been invited to several charity events in the area and has also donated SoHo services to The Breast Cancer Foundation during the month of October. He has also initiated several annual fashion shows, including the SoHo Fall Fashion Show and Spring Into Summer Fashion Show, giving local designers a chance to showcase their talents.
